Your dreams never need to die.

Will she learn that sometimes, when a dream comes true, it's not quite what you expected?

Brianna Campbell didn't come to Edinburgh to lose herself.

She came for music—for discipline, beauty, control.

Dear Qwerty,

Small Details: Are they needed or fluff?

Well, that's a good question but the answer is...complicated.

Most fluff is not needed.

Fluff is not needed unless it is necessary to the story. Some fluff is necessary.

Not Necessary:

Describing: Living areas, family rooms, libraries, kitchens, bedrooms, utility rooms, etc.

Gardens, vehicles (although you can specify a particular model-Jeep, Ford, Maserati), trees, plants,

We all know what a bed looks like, or comforters. Unless it's necessary to the story, it really doesn't need to be in it. Unless the character is stuck on the fancy possessions or name brands. Then, what you're doing is showing their personality likes expensive things.

We don't need to know the color of their clothing unless it stands out and will identify the person later.

Necessary:

Some authors prefer not to get too detailed on what a character looks like. That's okay. It's also acceptable to describe their eyes, hair, skin, weight, height, etc. Unless that mole above her lip is part of the story, it's fluff.

Callouses, dirty nails, Bitten nails are necessary if the character is nervous, high-strung, anxious, or you want to show they aren't perfect, or are hard-workers.

Here's the complicated part. I'm not saying you can't use fluff. But, if you need to cut back on words, those are the areas you can delete. As long as it isn't necessary to the story.

Describing a room can help the reader understand the character's personality. For example:

He entered the living room and blinked. He was surprised at the tidiness of the room. Little trinkets were strategically displayed on the end tables and a calico cat lounged in the corner next to a carpet covered feline pedestal. A pile of books were set on the coffee table next to a half-full cup of coffee and a small plate of crumbs left over from whatever snack she'd been enjoying.

That tells you the type of person who lives there. The fluff showed the reader they liked their coffee, books, snacks, and cats!

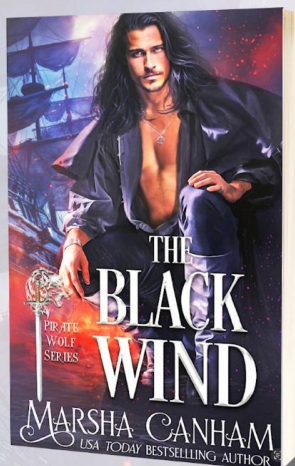

I hope this helps. It was part of the learning process and also helped with figuring out how to show and not tell.

Got questions? Go ahead and ask. We'll be happy to help.

Have a good moments day,

Pam

The year is 1814 and a British fleet is on its way to engage in the final battle to capture New Orleans.

Standing in its way is Rose St. Clare, descendant of the infamous Pirate Wolf, and the brilliant, fearless captain of the blockade runner, Cygnet.

Chasing her in his notorious ship, the Black Wind, is Sebastien Fonteyne, the extremely dangerous and successful privateer who reigns over Barataria Bay with Jean Lafitte.

A brand-new, never-before published tale of breath-taking adventure, treachery, betrayal, exhilarating sea battles and romance.

Passionate* Playful* Paranormal

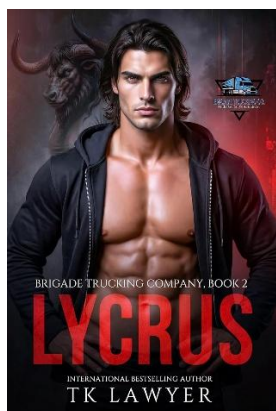

Award winning, International Bestselling author, TK Lawyer writes sexy and heartwarming paranormal and contemporary romance with HOT alpha males and feisty, curvy heroines. Her books often toe the line, straying from traditional ideas and opening readers' minds and hearts to unlimited possibilities. She loves exploring new ideas and new ways of thinking.

When she isn't reading or writing, she is likely spending time with her husband/best friend or catering to their lovable American Foxhound misfit who steals all the attention in their house.

Do you have a new book or series?

Yes, I am currently writing the Brigade Trucking Company series, a unique business where all of the drivers for the company are Shape Shifters. The first two books, Macon and Lycrus, are out. I am working on the third book, Dominic and hope to have it out in early 2027.

Where did the idea for this story come from?

I wanted to write a series with truck drivers. My husband received a Class A license a long while ago and would regale me with stories of the “trucker life” which I found fascinating. We do a lot of traveling, too, and stop at truck stops on our vacations so I wondered what it would be like if a company had Shape Shifters within it and it was an unknown secret. The Brigade just blossomed from there.

Was the one meant for him, already in his life?

Lycrus enjoyed the company of women,
Enough to gain a solid reputation as a player and a rake.
It was a badge of honor he deemed unnecessary and unfair.
He wasn't a player-
He just hadn't found the right one yet.

Beautiful, smart and sassy,
Chloe was his best friend.
A self-made, independent woman with a cat named Voodoo,
Chloe was also his stepsister.
A romantic rendezvous of any sort with her?

Unthinkable and off limits.

Yet, Lycrus chases off all Chloe's dates.
None of them are good enough for her.
But something must be done.

Will Chloe and Lycrus realize they may be the key to each other's happiness? Or will they keep their forbidden feelings hidden, forever?

Who's your favorite character in your new book or series?
Why?

Lycrus, the second book in the series, is my favorite so far.

Although I do like how Macon (the first book in the series) is super-spicy and pretty much the spiciest Shape-Shifter book I have written, I like the premise of Lycrus- the reformed playboy that falls for his stepsister. The taboo concept of the story is controversial, and I am always looking for controversial angles or different concepts to play with in my stories.

I had read a story where stepsiblings fell in love quite a while ago and I thought- why not do this with Lycrus? It turned out to be a great story.

Are there specific people or events that helped shape the story?

Yes, my husband Jim helps me with the fine details of the equipment and day-to-day operations of a trucking company to make the truck drivers more realistic in what they do and what they can face while on the job.

Do you get inspiration from personal experience or just plain imagination?

Actually, it depends on the story I am writing. I like to put a sense of realism into my paranormal worlds so that people can relate but I also like to add a bit of magic here and there like sprinkling it into a book at certain times to give the book a bit of whimsy or spice.

Several of my books have tidbits of facts in them that I have, personally, experienced or witnessed. Since I am not a plotter, these are added in when I feel a certain part or scene of the book could gain from it.

Have you ever driven down a road or gone on vacation and thought, wow, this would make an awesome story?

Yes, actually. One day I was listening to the radio and I was writing my second book, Centurion, in the Guardian League series, at the time. One of the announcers happened to mention she attended a Passion Party recently and the other announcer did not know what that was (as I did not know, at the time). Upon listening to her describe what it was and what she experienced, I laughed aloud in the car and thought “oh wow, this would be a great scene in Centurion’s book.”

An Angel Paranormal romance book with a passion party in it? Who has ever done that? Me. Heeheehee

Do you need silence or background noise when writing?

Utter silence to the point of needing headphones. It’s hard to listen to the little voices in my head when there is noise around me. I’ve even told my husband to go away when he asks me what I want for dinner. Lol. When I am in the zone, I am in the zone. Please do not disturb.

How do you stay motivated?

It’s hard. Imposter Syndrome is real. Some days I don’t feel good enough. When I see an influencer post their favorite authors for an event I am attending and I don’t see my name listed, it hurts (honestly). I have to keep reminding myself people like me and I have fans out there that can’t wait for my next book to come out. That’s what drives me. The fans and the happiness that pours out of them when they see me or meet me at an event. I love my fans!

Do you take time off once a book is sent to the editor, or do you move on to the next story?

At the beginning, I would move on to my next story but nowadays with the added stress of my day job, I have to take some time to chill out and relax, sometimes until the book is fully edited before I can move on to another one.

Taking time to decompress is essential for everyone but I think even more so for authors with pending deadlines and their own self-imposed pressure to get a book done and out there.

It's time to sit back and relax. What's your go-to?

I love relaxing in my special place in the home with a good cup of coffee and my Word Search book. Or reading while relaxing in this same place.

At night, I will relax on the second couch we have, in front of the T.V. and mostly likely watch a TV show or movie on Netflix with my hubby beside me and our American Foxhound, Ms. Molly laying across her bed.

Will you be attending any book signings or conventions?

Always. I am always busy throughout the year meeting fans and doing book signings at Indie bookstores or attending conventions. I love doing these and I fill up my calendar, posting all my events on my social media sites.

Lycrus, Brigade Trucking Company, Book Two

TK Lawyer

Lycrus enjoyed the company of women,
Enough to gain a solid reputation as a player and a rake.
It was a badge of honor he deemed unnecessary and unfair.
He wasn't a player-
He just hadn't found the right one yet.

Beautiful, smart and sassy,
Chloe was his best friend.
A self-made, independent woman with a cat named Voodoo,
Chloe was also his stepsister.
A romantic rendezvous of any sort with her?

Unthinkable and off limits.

Lycrus growled, the sound reverberating through the back of his throat. “You’re wrong about me!”

He slammed the door behind him to add impact to his statement, envisioning the words vibrating fully throughout his sister’s body, rattling her brain cells to effectively change her mind about him, too. He chuckled at the image floating through his mind.

Chloe... He groaned. She was frustrating, beautiful, and opinionated. She was also his sister. Well, she wasn't a blood relative. Still, they remained close.

Having been adopted into a family that loved and embraced him, despite what he was, made a massive impact on his life. He imagined the “what ifs” that might have occurred if he hadn’t been so lucky. If the family that had taken him in, as a child, had, instead, abandoned him, shortly after their first encounter with his “true self”—he blew out a long, mournful sigh.

His parents’ acceptance was unexpected and surprising. Instead of remaining frightened upon their first genuine encounter with him, his parents had considered all possibilities. They apparently decided that a life with him was better than a life without him. He never questioned “why” they kept him or their motive. He never wanted to, for he feared what he might learn. Humans kept secrets and sometimes it was easier not to unravel them. He focused, instead, on the facts and how they treated him. All they did was love him.

They accepted him completely, and that’s all he needed to know. Of course, this acceptance of him and what he was, included his sweet, generous sister, Chloe. She was the one in the family he had no expectations of. Chloe was her own woman. She made her own decisions and led her life the way she wanted. She was not a caretaker. Merely a bystander who had had no say in his adoption into the family. Yet, Chloe’s acceptance and even fondness for him helped shape their relationship and foster within him a bond with Chloe that seemed unbreakable.

AdC Magazine Ms. October Christa Ann

Christa Ann started out writing poems like her mother. Until one day stories started coming to the front of her mind. Romance, shifter, western, and fantasies from faraway places; unknown but demanded to be created. Her debut novel, Finding Love Again—a contemporary western romance and first in a tantalizing new series—released in the fall of 2016.

She grew up in Maryland and now lives in Southwest Florida with her husband, daughter, grandsons, a cat named Bolt, and a Terrier named Cooper. She's also a proud grandmother of four granddaughters and two grandsons.

Some of her favorite things are spending time with her family and friends, reading, hiking, traveling, and chocolate. Being Irish/Scottish, Christa also Irish step dances with her daughter and loves St. Patrick's Day and Bunratty Mead. She also enjoys playing her piano; she's been playing for 46 years.

Heir of the Merfolk throne, Dax Whelan, has everything except the mate he can never claim. Going against his father's rule that forbids human contact, Dax remains friends with Kendra. But the more he's around her, the more he wants her. Claiming her as his mate could get them both killed.

Kendra Hayes is promised to wed a prince who resides in the mountains, far away from the ocean she loves. It would also take her from the merman she longs for. But she can do nothing to get out of the arranged marriage, so she has to say goodbye to her one true love.

When a sea witch comes to Kendra with an offer she can't refuse, Dax and Kendra have only two weeks to get the MerKing to see past his pain and bless their mating. If they fail, they must say goodbye forever.

As hybrid shifters, Gunner and his siblings shouldn't exist. Until recently the shifter communities did know about them or the lab they came from. After one of his sisters is attacked on wolf territory, his family is in more danger than expected. More hybrids are being created and weaponized. It's up to Gunner and his family to take down the organization who created them.

When a decision is made to return to the lab where he was born, he isn't sure how he feels. Being paired up with bear Alpha, Zara Black, for this mission stirs a dangerous desire he isn't prepared for. Because the beautiful female is his mate. And he must push her away.

Will the attraction between them be enough to risk the danger? Or will it pull them further apart?

Do you have a new book or series?

I'm working on a dragon shifter series, but the series name and the first book's title are still not finalized. I'm also writing book 4 of my Hidden Breed Series.

I released two books in June. "Christmas in Killarney" Billionaire Under the Mistletoe. "Saving Saber" book 3 of the Hidden Breed Series.

Where did the idea for this story come from?

I dreamt the prologue from Layla's point of view.

Who's your favorite character in your new book or series? Why?

In the new dragon shifter series, Layla. She's a fae who fell in love with a dragon even though the elders of both sides still have doubts. The hero's cousin wants him gone and plans on taking Layla. She's kind and loves her family with everything she has. But will do what she needs and fight for the dragon she loves.

Are there specific people or events that helped shape the story?

Layla came to me in a dream, but some of her characteristics remind me of my older sister.

Sometimes I have a character that I'm writing, and the voice is a friend or family member. For instance, in Celtic Rendezvous, the dressmaker is not only named after my beloved mother-in-law but also mimics her (her occupation was a seamstress). Yes, and before anyone asks, she was one of my closest friends, and I loved her dearly.

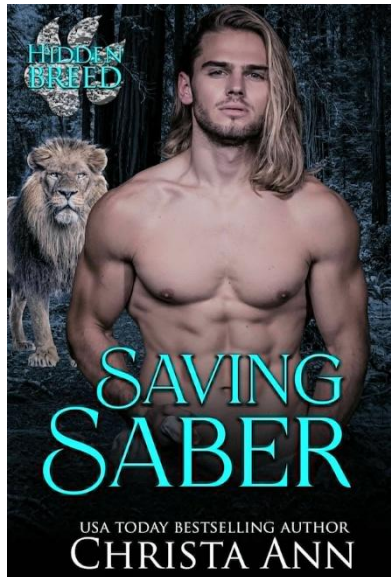

Do you get inspiration from personal experience or just plain imagination?

A little bit of both, but mostly my imagination. I started an outline for a contemporary romance that will have a medical condition I know extremely well. I live the condition every day.

Have you ever driven down a road or gone on vacation and thought, wow, this would make an awesome story?

Yes, I've even made my husband pull over so I can take pictures from different angles. I also write down what I can hear, smell, and see around me.

I've been to Killarney twice and have fallen in love with the town and its people. This was my inspiration for the Christmas-in-July book "Christmas in Killarney".

Do you need silence or background noise when writing?

I need background noise. I have playlists on my phone, computer, and iPad.

How do you stay motivated?

I keep a schedule for when to write so I don't get burned out or writer's block. I keep a small notebook with me everywhere I go when I think of an idea or one of my characters starts talking.

Do you take time off once a book is sent to the editor, or do you move on to the next story?

Sometimes, I will take time to spend with family or friends. Or if one of my characters wants me to write their story.

It's time to sit back and relax. What's your go-to?

That's hard to answer; there are several things I like to do. Watch a movie with hubby or the entire family. I play my piano or read a book.

Will you be attending any book signings or conventions?

Yes, I will be attending Feel The Heat Book Bash in Wesley Chapel/Tampa, FL on November 14, 2026

Saving Saber, Book 3 of the Hidden Breen Series

He's losing control of the beast inside him... and she might be the only one who can save him.

Hybrid shifter Saber has spent his entire life fighting the animal instincts created in a secret lab experiment gone wrong. With his inner lion and tiger growing more unstable by the day, he retreats into the wild territory of the lion pride, desperate for peace before he becomes a danger to everyone he loves.

Felicia only wanted a quiet run through the forest. Instead, she crosses paths with a dangerously powerful stranger who awakens something primal inside her the moment their eyes meet. The chemistry between them is instant, fierce, and impossible to ignore. But when Saber's enemies close in and the truth about the lab that created him resurfaces, Felicia realizes the man she's falling for is running out of time.

Saber never planned to claim a mate. Not when his control is slipping and the darkness inside him threatens to destroy everything around him. But Felicia's scent calms the chaos in a way nothing else ever has, binding them together with a connection neither of them can deny.

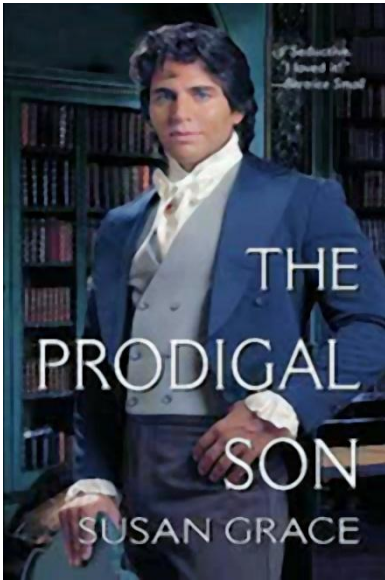

Now Saber must choose between pushing her away to protect her... or risking everything to fight for the future they could have together.

Cover Model Corner

with Peter DeCicco

Today I'm excited to be interviewing cover model Peter DeCicco for Cover Model Corner.

Debra: What was the first cover you appeared on and how did it come about?

Peter: The Prodigal Son by Susan Grant. The best-selling book was "A lion in Glory: by Shannon Drake.

Debra: If you could do a photo shoot anywhere in the world for a cover, where would you most want to go?

Peter: What sort of shoot would it be? I'd love to shoot a romance cover in Hawaii, but with a story behind it. I picture myself as a pirate whose ship is attacked by a British naval vessel somewhere in the Pacific. After a fierce battle, both ships are destroyed and sink, and I'm the only survivor from the pirate crew.

I eventually wash ashore on a beautiful, deserted Hawaiian island, only to discover I'm not alone. The captain's daughter from the British ship has survived as well. Suddenly, two people who should have been enemies are stranded together with no one else to depend on. She despises the pirate, but over time they must put aside where they came from and learn to survive together—and somewhere along the way, that tension turns into attraction and eventually romance.

For the cover shoot, I picture that tropical, shipwrecked setting: rugged pirate clothing, the ocean and cliffs behind us, maybe pieces of the wreckage along the shore, and the two of us looking like we've just survived something incredible together. I think Hawaii would be the perfect backdrop for that kind of adventurous, dramatic romance cover.

Debra: That sounds perfect! I would love to see that cover. Beyond romance novel cover shots, what other projects keep you busy?

Peter: I work with Veterans through an organization called Pacific Mind Health www.pacificmindhealth.com that helps them with their mental health issues and addiction issues. I am also a co Producer of the military Veteran Entertainment Awards. www.mvawards.org

Debra: That is wonderful! Veterans are near and dear to my heart. Now, what's one question you wish an interviewer would ask?

Peter: “What’s the craziest or most unexpected thing that’s happened because you became a romance cover model?”

Debra: I’m asking! And what would your answer be?

Peter: The funniest thing was at a Romance Convention, an 82-year-old Grandma grabbed me in my private area and wouldn’t let go. LOL Also, the famous Author, Christine Feehan and Sheila English asked me to be in Book Trailers to promote their upcoming books. One was Dark Symphony and can be seen here

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Hmo4VMcbbXg>

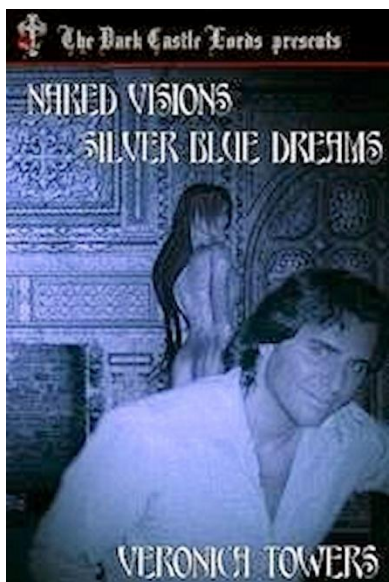

Debra: Oh my, that's a spunky 82-year-old! LOL And you've portrayed a Carpathian vampire! I love the romantic dance scene.

If you wrote a book, what would it be about?

Peter: Actually, I had a very interesting life, and I am thinking about writing about some of my experiences.

Debra: I hope you do, and I would love to read about them.

Your fitness level is beyond the average person. What is your exercise routine and what sort of nutrition plan do you follow to achieve and maintain your level of fitness?

Peter: Thank You, I work out 6 days a week. I focus on body building, then my cardio is boxing and Muay Thai 3 days a week. A lot of work. I Try to eat 5 small meals a day and stay away from alcohol, sugar, soda, and sometimes have Debra: If you could share three simple fitness tips the average romance reader could do every day to stay healthy, what would they be?

Peter: Try to exercise at least 3-5 days a week, whatever your passion is, walking, tai chi, stretching, jogging, yoga, swimming, Zumba-. Just get out there and move.

Debra: Excellent advice. Now it's your birthday dinner and calories don't count. What's on the menu and what are you drinking?

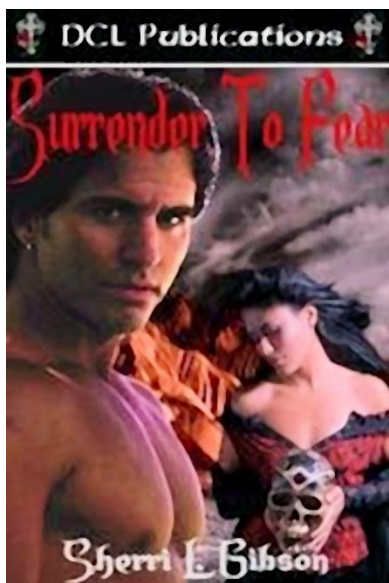

Peter: Cheesecake Factory restaurant Chicken Piccata dinner. I don't drink alcohol so probably a cappuccino,

Debra: Describe the perfect romantic evening:

Peter: My perfect romantic evening would be somewhere near the ocean, watching the sunset with someone special. I'd cook a great dinner for us. Then we'd just relax, laugh, flirt, walk barefoot on the moonlit beach, and enjoy each other's company. For me, romance doesn't have to be extravagant. If chemistry is right, the conversation is easy, and neither of us wants the night to end, that's pretty much perfect.

Debra: That sounds lovely. Please share one unusual fact about you or your life:

Peter: I took a 23andMe DNA test and got the surprise of my life—I discovered that I have a half-brother, neither my dad nor I ever knew about. Apparently, about five years before my dad met my mom, he had been with a woman who became pregnant but never told him because he was enlisted into the Army. She later married someone else, and my half-brother was raised by that man. Decades later, a simple DNA test revealed a part of our family history we never knew existed. It was incredible to discover that I had a brother out there all those years. We have met.

Debra: What a wonderful thing, meeting the brother you never knew you had!

Eight Quickie questions:

1.) Watching the sunrise, or the sunset and the stars?

Peter: Sunset Stars

2.) The beach, or the mountains?

Peter: Beach

3.) Primitive camping, or luxury hotel?

Peter: Hotel

4.) Snow skiing, or water skiing?

Peter: Snow Skiing

5.) Favorite movie:

Peter: The fifth element

6.) Best book you ever read:

Peter: A brief History of Time- Stephen Hawking

7.) Fav. Sport to play:

Peter: Wind Surfing

8.) Fav. Sport to watch:

Peter: Baseball

Peter, thank you for chatting with me. It's been fun getting to know you!

Don't Never Give Up is a historical romance that begins with ten-year-old Ezekiel "Bonkie" Harrison waking up alone in a hotel, with no sign of his father except for a pocket watch and a few dollars. He sets out on a quest to track down the man who abandoned him.

However, mid-nineteenth-century Missouri is a lawless frontier. Bonkie is immediately robbed and stumbles into the next town, broke, weary, and hungry. After getting caught stealing carrots from a garden, the owner, Mathilda, treats him with gentle kindness that renews Bonkie's hope. When he meets Rufus, a freeman who lives off the land, Bonkie gradually learns how to become the kind of man Mathilda deserves. Yet, as the years go by, the rumors about his father's whereabouts continue to haunt him.

Does the modern world make us all crazy?

Why do we believe unsupported ideas contrary to all common sense?

Answer: We don't directly experience our world. We interpret and twist every encounter according to our own worldview. (Thus we believe what we prefer.)

How worldviews so often become distorted — bringing delusions, depression, and crazy beliefs — is an extremely important new area of psychology.

If you constantly find yourself asking, "How in the world can people really believe that?!" then this book is for you.

When Claire Fournaris heads east to settle her beloved aunt's affairs, she is nearly killed in a terrifying car accident. No one believes her when she insists that someone tried to kill her, until someone close to her is found dead. Would the dying last words of the victim be enough to save Claire in that final moment when her fate hangs in the balance? A spellbinding tale of deception and murder, with unexpected twists at every turn and a cast of characters that will keep you guessing till the end.

Not every dish should be served.

Karmen Artos, a sous chef at Feline Fine Retirement Home, is horrified when two of the residents hijack her kitchen. Worse yet, they've created an Internet cooking show that has gone viral. The recipes are revolting, but viewers are wild for 'Grandma's Witchin' Kitchen!'

Devon Winger, a down-on-his-luck showrunner, arrives in Cat's Paw Cove to convince the eccentric elderly Internet stars to take the show to the next level -- a ShowFlix series. The magical stars are tickled at the idea, but Karmen is dead set against revealing the sanctuary for supernaturals to the world.

Can Karmen convince the sexy Devon that the show will be a dud? Or will Devon realize there's more to the quirky retirement home than meets the camera's eye?
